The phone of the future

Can you imagine what phones will look like in fifteen years' time? In some countries, people can already use their mobile phone as a credit card to buy things in shops. But in the future, mobiles could also be used as house keys, passports or video recorders. And they will be smaller – some companies are planning to make phones built into glasses. But one expert thinks that in the future we will use our thoughts to communicate with each other and we won't need phones at all! Page 131.
